

I am more than my disability

#BeReasonable

Myth 4

Disabled people are more likely to be off work sick

FACT: This is not true. There is no evidence that tells us that disabled people are more likely to miss work. Being off work because of a disability is not the same as time off for 'being sick'. Discounting disability-related absence from sickness absence triggers and making separate provision for disability leave are forms of 'reasonable adjustments' that your employer can make to prevent discriminating against you.
