Conversation Briefing

www.UNISON-Scotland.org

UNISON Scotland launched its new website www.unison-scotland.org – a few weeks ago.

UNISON campaigns and bargaining team are publishing policy and research materials on our new website to support your campaigning for the 2016 Scottish Parliament Election. Go to the Campaigns menu and then:

- Manifesto-Election 2016 page: <http://www.unison-scotland.org/campaigns/manifesto-scottish-election-2016/>
- Our Influencers page: <http://www.unison-scotland.org/campaigns/public-works/influencers/>

So far, we have published the Police Manifesto and Early Learning and Childcare Manifesto. These summarise UNISON policy and include questions for candidates.

- On the Manifesto-Election 2016 page you will also see a link to our joint report with IPPR which shows that pay is down 12% in real terms: <http://www.unison-scotland.org/2016/03/23/unison-welcome-ippr-scotland-report-scotland-pay-packets-down-12-in-real-terms-since-2009/>

Future campaign resources:

Other campaigns materials will follow. We will soon also publish:

- UNISON Election Manifesto 2016
- Climate change manifesto
- Health inequalities manifesto
- Social care manifesto
- Local government funding manifesto

What you can do:

- Visit and use our new website www.unison-scotland.org
- Use these resources, and please help other UNISON members to access them
- Publicise the manifestos locally as much as you can
- Use the questions and information as part of your local campaigns
- Share this new website, and please feedback comments via the link on the home page.

It's vital UNISON influence the debate for public services in Scotland
